Mom's house, Dad's house. If you ask their opinion, children will almost always choose a two-parent, two-home alternative over a one-home arrangement with the other parent as a visitor or -- worse yet -- gone from the scene entirely. Here's how to meet the challenges of setting up two happy homes for your children. Parents who set up two homes for their children often make comments like "It made me feel I was a real parent again" or "I knew what I was doing and the children could ...

The Stuff at Mom's House and the Stuff at Dad's House: The Material Consumption of Divorce for Adolescents. Our life-stories as social actors can be told through our objects, our places, and our consumption practices. Once told, these stories can reveal the active individual and collective meaning-making processes that are at stake in home consumption, and they can illuminate the many intersections between identities, interactions, and the material culture of homes (Hurdley 2006).
